

THE FRIENDSHIP GARDEN

In a cozy little town named Harmony Haven, there was an enchanted garden known as the Friendship Garden. This magical place was home to a variety of flowers, each with its own unique color and personality.

One sunny day, a shy little flower named Petal arrived at the Friendship Garden. Petal had petals that were still tightly closed, and it felt a bit hesitant about making friends with the other vibrant flowers.

The wise Sunflower, the leader of the garden, noticed Petal's hesitation and decided to lend a helping hand.

"Hello, Petal! Welcome to the Friendship Garden," Sunflower exclaimed with a warm smile. "Why don't you join us in our daily dance? It's a wonderful way to get to know each other."

Petal nervously agreed, and soon, the flowers were swaying and twirling together in the gentle breeze. As Petal opened up and started to dance, its petals began to unfurl, revealing a beautiful, unique pattern. The other flowers cheered in delight, appreciating Petal's individuality. Sunflower gathered everyone and said, "In our Friendship Garden, each flower is different, but together, we create a masterpiece of diversity."

From that day on, Petal not only danced with the other flowers but also shared its own special dance moves, adding even more beauty to the garden.

As the seasons changed, the flowers faced challenges like rainstorms and strong winds. However, they stood together, supporting each other through thick and thin. The Friendship Garden blossomed into a kaleidoscope of colors, symbolizing the strength of unity and the beauty of true friendship. And so, in the heart of Harmony Haven, the Friendship Garden became a cherished haven where every flower, no matter how small or different, found acceptance and joy in the company of true friends.

The end.

